(Evening Despatches to the Times)

Later from Europe—$130,000 belonging to Soldiers Stolen—Important from Vicksburg—Six Union Gunboats Run the Rebel Batteries—Gen Keyes preparing to Shell Williamsburg.

New York, 21st.

A Yorktown letter of the 19th says, our loss in the battle of the 11th, at Williamsburg, was 1 killed and 3 prisoners. The enemy's loss was 60 killed and 60 prisoners.

Wise, with 3000 men, still occupy Williamsburg. Yesterday Gen Keyes sent a flag of truce bearing an order for the citizens to leave the place, as he was about to shell the town.

Fort Magruder has been reinforced by some heavy guns, and a gunboat has gone up the York river, and another up the James river on either side of the town.

New York, 21st

The steamship Kangaroo and the City of Baltimore from Europe, arrived at 7 A M

Their dates are four days later

The Inman line announces a regular extra steamer on every alternate Friday

The Great Eastern will not be floated until about the last. The departure is postponed until about a fortnight after that.

The new gunboat Alexander, built by Miller & Co Liverpool, and recently launched, was seized at one of the Liverpool docks on Sunday one day by the Custom House authorities on suspicion of being intended for the rebels. The matter will be fully investigated before any proceedings will be taken, beyond the detention of the vessel.

The London Star considers the event as an exceedingly good omen, and demands that the ban be fully executed.

The correspondence between the owners of the Peterhoff and the Foreign Office, is published.

Russell says the examination of her papers having satisfied the Government there was no prima facie ground of capture, and that the seizure was wholly unjustifiable. He has instructed Lord Lyons to make immediate representation of the circumstances to the Washington Government, and if no legal ground for capture is alleged, to press for the release of the vessel and cargo, and compensation without delay of a prize court, but if any legal ground of capture be alleged, this case, like all others, must follow the ordinary course.

It was reported that two well known American merchants had arrived in London to dispose of two millions sterling sixper cent U S bonds and with part of the proceeds buy up vessels building in England for the Confederates.

It was also reported that they were authorized to negotiate a loan of from ten to twenty millions sterling.

The Confederate loan touched 5 discount but rallied to 1½ discount.

The American Consul at Hamburg refused to attach his signature to a mutual document because the names of Schroder & Co, who negotiated the Confederate loan, appeared in the document.

The Union and Emancipation Society of Manchester held a meeting to protest against the building of war ships for the rebels and adopted a memorial calling on the Government to vindicate the honor of England by stopping such proceeding.

Princess Louise, of Hesse, and Princess Alice of England were safely delivered of Princesses on the 5th inst.

Admiral Jurien de La Graviere has been recalled from Mexico. The alleged cause is too unimportant to warrant the presence of an officer of such rank.

The Polish insurrection was reported to be increasing in various directions.

Sundry conflicts are reported, with varying success.

It was asserted that France, England and Austria had come to an understanding, and had sent separate notes to Russia, identical in cause, but avoiding anything like pressure.

The nobility at St. Petersburg had adopted an address to the Czar in favor of the maintenance of the integrity of the Empire at all costs.

It was reported that Denmark would allow Prince William to accept the Greek crown, a upon terms not likely to be acceded to.

London 9th. The Confederate loan advanced 1½ per cent yesterday on advices from Liverpool and Manchester.

The Times has an article to the effect that California rings with preparations for offensive and defensive war against England, probably under the inspiration of Mr Seward, for the capture of British Columbia, and says the Federal Government is building iron clads for California use, and are exporting thither large quantities of shell and gunpowder.

Liverpool, 9th. Another rebel privateer, called the "Japan" or "Virginia," sailed from Greenock.

Cincinnati, 21st

The Commercial's Murfreesboro despatch says he has advices from General Hurlbut at Memphis stating that General Dodge, commanding at Corinth, attacked the rebels and drove them from Bear Creek to Great Creek. Our loss was 100 killed and wounded.

The rebel loss is not stated.

Vicksburg despatches contain nothing new. Important news is expected in a day or two.

New York, 21st

The Herald's despatch from headquarters army of Potomac, April 21st, says that last week $780,000 was stolen between Aquia Creek and Washington. The money was in separate packages, and belonged to the soldiers who were forwarding it to their families.

The Herald's Washington despatch states that the reports of the repulse of General Hooker and General Stoneman are the purest fabrications ever invented. There has been no battle on the Rappahannock, and no sights of a rebel victory—all reports to the contrary. There has not even been what can be called a skirmish since the great battle at Fredericksburg.

Albany, N Y, 21

The Assembly adopted the majority report in the case of Speaker Callicot, clearing him of the charges against him.

Philadelphia, 20

A large and enthusiastic meeting at the Union League house, was held this evening. Among the speakers were Secretary Chase, Mr Marks, a southern refugee, and others.

Chicago, Ill, 21

A special despatch from Memphis says the steamer Silver Moon, from Vicksburg Friday, brings intelligence that the night before the gunboats Benton, Tuscumbia, Lafayette, Pittsburg, Carondelet, General Price, and three transports run the batteries at Vicksburg, all safely except the transport Henry Clay which caught fire opposite Vicksburg and was burned.

The Benton was the only one struck. She had one man killed and two wounded.

The transport Forest Queen had her drum head injured by coming in contact with one of the gunboats, which is easily repaired.

From the time of starting until the first shot was heard from the rebel batteries, nearly an hour and a quarter elapsed, by which time nearly all had got past.

New York, 21st

Steamer George Washington, from New Orleans 12th, has arrived.

Important military movements were in progress against the rebels in Bayou Teche.

General Banks is in the field at the head of Grover's and Emery's divisions and Weitzel's brigade.

On the 11th Weitzel's force crossed Berwick Bay on pontoons, and advanced five miles up the Teche to Pattersonville.

The enemy retreated upon the approach of our forces, which steadily advanced. The latter was reinforced on Sunday by Emery's division.

Grover's forces embarked at Brashear City, and proceeded into Grand Lake to a point called Indian Bend, above Franklin. Imagine it successfully accomplished, will bring the enemy between two fires, and cannot fail of good results. The rebel force is estimated at 8000.

On Sunday afternoon sharp skirmishing commenced between Weitzel's advance and the rebels, the latter retreating toward Franklin.

It was reported at New Orleans on the 13th inst, that Weitzel's advance was within six miles of Franklin.

It was also rumored that General Grant had appeared with a strong force on Red river.

On the 9th inst, Colonel Daniels, with 180 colored troops went to Pascagoula, Miss, took possession of the place and hoisted the stars and stripes.

He was subsequently attacked by 300 rebel cavalry and a company of infantry. A severe fight ensued, which resulted in the killing of 20 rebels, the wounding of a large number, and three prisoners.

The rebels then retreated, leaving a set of colors behind.

Colonel Daniels lost two killed and five slightly wounded.

The enemy brought down large reinforcements from Mobile, and Colonel Daniels returned to Ship Island.

The small gunboat Barrataria was engaged in Amite River on the 7th. The guerillas surrounded her, when it being impossible to get her off, she was fired by her officers and abandoned.

Washington 21st

The following has been received at headquarters of the army,

Fortress Monroe 21st

Major Gen Halleck General in Chief

I deem it due to the forces at Suffolk, to notice briefly their gallant conduct during the last six days.

On Tuesday, Gen Peck's right was attacked and the enemy's advance was gallantly met by Gen Foster's light troops, and the former were driven back to their line of pickets.

Anderson's division was engaged at the same time on the water front, with our gunboats and batteries and suffered materially.

On Wednesday a rebel battery of 20 pounder rifled guns was silenced effectually, and an attack on the Smith Briggs, an armed Quartermaster's boat, was repulsed.

Repeated attempts have been made upon our lines, but have all failed.

The storming of the enemy's battery near the west branch of the Nansemond, by Gen Getty, and the gunboats under Lieut. Lamson of the navy, and the capture of six guns, and 200 prisoners closes the operations of six days against the enemy's large force, very satisfactorily.

(Signed) JOHN A DIX,
Maj General

New York 21st.

The steamer Augusta Dinsmore from Port Royal, via Beaufort 18th, has arrived.

The rebels have retreated from the vicinity of Washington, N C, and abandoned all the batteries on Tar River.

The steamer Escort left Newbern 17th for Washington, and was not molested on the passage up.

Gen Foster is still at Newbern.

There is nothing later from Hilton Head.

"Jeff Davis's Dream."

The following (which might well be true) we take from the New Orleans Era of a late date.

One day while sitting in an old fashioned high backed chair in the parlor of a Hotel at Richmond, in May, 1862, enjoying a good pipe and a Northern paper, and had just become interested in the latest news, I heard the door of the room open and the footsteps of two persons approaching. They seemed to be talking confidentially together, and I thought it my duty to make known my presence by some sign so that I might not hear anything not intended for my ear, but on on peering into the room, imagine my surprise when I recognized in the occupants, Jeff Davis and his traitor friend, Toombs, of Georgia. I hesitated no longer but settled back in my seat and bent every energy to listen to the conversation, which was carried on in a low tone.

But, said Toombs, Mr Davis, you must not give way to the vagaries of your brain. Come, tell me all about this wonderful dream, and my word for it, you will feel better after the recital. Davis, rising turned the key in the door, and resuming his seat close by Toombs, gave the following version of the dream that disturbed him. Said he, I had a party of friends to supper last night, who prolonged their visit to a late hour. I ate heartily during the evening and experienced a strange feeling of heaviness before retiring. My room, you know, is well supplied with large windows, and the night being a splendid one, I lay on my back gazing out on the heavens sparkling as it were, with diamonds, and ruminating on the destiny of the Confederacy. How long I continued thus, I know not, but stealing over my senses, as it appeared to me, instantly came a clearer perception of our cause from the beginning. I thought myself in Washington, in that same room where we all met that night to perfect our plans for the destruction of the great Republic. I thought that you were there, Toombs and Breckinridge, and all the rest, and I seemed to live over again, the closing scenes which were enacted in Congress, and I was startled with the contemplation by a low, deep, solemn voice close by my pillow, saying, "Jefferson Davis—Jefferson Davis!" This was the beginning—I started and looked round to see who it was that spoke in those awful tones, and a cold chill of horror crept over me as I saw a dim, shadowy figure disappear in the distance. Presently my gaze became fixed, and before me passed the whole Southern land, one State after another.—Maryland, heaving and tossing as upon the waves of the ocean, doubting which way to plunge; Virginia had a smiling exterior, but the most deadly, damning hate rankling in her heart; Georgia, crazy with the [illegible] weight of her sins and passions, anxious to give them vent in the warm blood of the Northern heart, and so passed they all one after the other, the last appearing still more hellish than the first. No sooner were these ended than by some singular change in my position I imagined myself standing on the top of Bunker Hill and once more the panorama of the States were presented before me. This time it was of the North. But why enter into the details of this vision, for I saw them in all the beauty of their free system, the children on their way to school the old people to the noon day prayer meeting, the farmer in the field and the scholar in his study. All this passed rapidly before me and I felt a fire in my heart that to my disordered brain threatened to consume me entirely.—Again the scene changed, and I found myself on a height overlooking Charleston harbor just at the moment the Star of the West was attempting to carry provisions to the starving garrison within. I saw the shot fired, forcing her return, and my heart sunk within me as I heard that deep, solemn voice close beside me say, "Jefferson Davis, Jefferson Davis, this is your preparation for the halter!" Again I saw the first sail to the relief of Sumter—saw the bombardment and its final fall. Once more I imagined myself standing on the summit of Bunker Hill and the whole North spread out at my feet and my God the change that had come over this land. Where, from this very spot and extending out to its farthest corner, there was a hurrying to and fro—men shouldering their muskets and all tending to one point, Washington. My eyes fairly blazed from my head when from the clear blue sky above me, I heard once more the mysterious voice ringing in my ears. "Jefferson Davis, Jefferson Davis, behold the armed legions of the North, see the agony of parting, see the misery and desolation that are to follow. Jefferson Davis, this is your work!" My limbs trembled as I heard these words uttered in these awful tones. My brain reeled, and I fell heading from my position.

At this point Jeff Davis stopped talking and wiped the cold sweat from his brow—Toombs remarked that it was a most wonderful dream—most wonderful, when Jefferson resuming said, I thought that my fall was not sudden, but that I occupied some months in my descent, and during those months I could see McClellan's Anaconda tightening its folds all around the Confederacy and I felt the certainty that all was lost, that we would be crushed in one common destruction. I saw the capture of Forts Henry and Donelson, and a thrill of horror crept over me as I saw that traitor to the North and South, Floyd, steal away in the darkness of the night leaving the rest to destruction. Along the lines I saw our armies possessed of a fearful dread, flying from Nashville and Columbus, saw the battles of Elk Ridge, Pittsburg Landing, and all others, and almost in the twinkling of an eye the Great Army of the Potomac under McClellan pressing on to Richmond in all its mighty proportions appeared before me and I felt that all was lost. Again the solemn voice rang in my ears. "Jefferson Davis, Jefferson Davis! thy doom is sealed—meet thy reward." No sooner were these words uttered, than in the distance I heard an unearthly shouting and yelling that grated on my feelings like a red-hot iron drawn through every portion of my body. Soon there came a sight what I found to my horror to be a body guard of imps sent from the bottomless pit to bring me to judgment. Placing themselves around and under my body we descended rapidly towards Hades. Soon we found ourselves landed on a barren rock, in the most desolate place I leave you to imagine. Stepping round to the angle, it disclosed to my view a wide entrance and all around it grew the most beautiful flowers, and I seemed to hear the most beautiful sounds imaginable. One of my guards spoke to me and said, "Child of mortality follow." He led the way, and I followed closely. It was not long before the beauty of the entrance passed away, and all became dark, dreary and desolate. Traveling what seemed a great distance we at last came to a great iron door, the nails upon which seemed to sparkle and blaze with some intense heat within. Here sat an elderly imp as a doorkeeper, and by his side was a very large book in which were written, in letters of fire, the names of all the damned who had preceded me. "Child of sin, spoke the old man, who art thou?" and I answered verily, my brain reels, and I know not. "Child of sin, tell me by what name thou wert known on the earth?" and I answered, Jefferson Davis. No sooner had he uttered this name, than the imps, with a horrible, never-to be forgotten screech, sprang to a distant corner, and stood staring with gleaming eyeballs that seemed to loathe me with a most tremendous loathing. I tried to approach them but they would not permit it, seeming fearful of any contact with me. Horror-stricken and amazed at this conduct of those I thought would be my friends, I returned to the door, which I now found open. No sooner had I entered than the door closed with a heavy sound, and I heard, rolling and rolling in a distance, my name as I was thus introduced to the society of the damned. Onward and onward I found myself traveling, and ever and anon, as I passed by some poor wretch writhing in all the misery of the lost, I would turn my eyes to catch one look of sympathy, one glance of commiseration for my fate, but in vain. All seemed to look upon me with a dreadful horror and pointing their burnt fingers of scorn as I passed, whispered to each other "Hell is disgraced. Hell is disgraced!" Hurrying faster on I at last found myself before an open door, having printed overhead, in letters of fire, the words, "Enter and receive thy doom!" I entered, and there in the middle of an apartment, was raised a throne of living fire, and upon it sat the most awful being I ever beheld. On his head was a crown of living scorpions and round his neck and coiled in his bosom was the deadly rattlesnake. I had but a short time to look, when in a voice of thunder, he said to me—"Who art thou?" And through the long arches through which I had passed came the answer—"Jefferson Davis, Jefferson Davis!—Hell is disgraced—cast him out!" Transfixed with horror, the Devil seemed to gaze upon me, and in a voice of awful depth and hardness, said to me, "Jefferson Davis, once upon a time I who now sit here, jailor of the damned, ambitious to be something greater than the greatest, rebelled, and was cast forth, and this sentence was passed upon me—to sink down to hell and have dominion over all the iniquity of the world until a greater than I should appear, when I should be released and my dominion be given to him. Jefferson Davis, long I have waited, long have I tempted, but in vain, until today you appear before me loaded down with a crime that even I shudder as I see you. Jefferson Davis, said he, rising, "take my seat and crown." As he uttered those awful words, my blood seemed to freeze in my veins, and the most horrid wail of agony rose from the myriad of the damned, and with a shout I awoke, trembling in every limb, a cold perspiration all over me, and broad day-light streaming in through my windows. The scenes seemed so real and my doom so prophetic, that it preys upon me like a canker, and I find myself unable to cast it off.

Davis here ceased speaking, and they both rose and unlocking the door, passed out, and as they passed, I caught a glimpse of them, and never till the day of my death shall I forget the haggard, careworn faces of those two traitors

HOW LOYAL SLAVEHOLDERS TALK. In striking contrast with the rebellious and pro-slavery spirit of many Northern democrats are the acts and utterances of many loyal men of the Slave States Brought up in the midst of slavery—educated to believe the institution just, right and desirable, and with their minds entirely prejudiced in its favor, they are nevertheless every day yielding up their former preferences and their property interests in a noble devotion to their country, and a cheerful willingness to sacrifice them all, if necessary, to the preservation of our Republican Government This spirit has in reality opened the eyes of many of them to the real evils of the system of slavery, and made them entirely willing to see it destroyed After reading secession-sympathizing speeches and resolutions adopted at a Northern "democratic" convention it is refreshing to read such accounts as a recent one of a meeting of the Union League of Philadelphia, addressed by speakers from the Border States, whose words had no uncertain sound Adjutant General Harrington of Delaware, said —"The line between loyalty and disloyalty has been distinctly drawn We demand of our citizens that they shall give up everything which stands in the way of the Government. We would rather be called abolitionists than submit to treason and treachery against the Government We have come to regard slavery as the cause of the rebellion, and it has never been a blessing to us nor to anybody else." We have found that where slavery is strong, rebellion is strong He was happy to live in this crisis He thought the nation would come out of this trial purer brighter, holier, and without the stain of slavery upon the flag of the country

Colonel Wilber of Kent County, was the next speaker, he announced himself a slaveholder but he expressed it as his opinion that the political condition of his State was caused by slavery If the Union could not be restored with slavery, then he would let his own negroes go, and those of others He was willing that the Legislature of Delaware should pass a measure for the abolition of slavery without compensation He would rather have the unconditional emancipation of slaves in Delaware than any her people should pay for his slaves

THE WISCONSIN ELECTION—A Republican Victory after All The New York Tribune says that the latest returns of the Judicial Election in the State of Wisconsin indicate that the copperheads have been counting their chickens prematurely It is now pretty certain that instead of a Democratic victory by 6,000 majority, as was exultingly proclaimed, Judge Dixon, the Union candidate, has been handsomely elected The Judge had up hill work, in view of the local interests involved in the election Farmers who had mortgaged their property to build railroads, were disposed to repudiate their obligations. Judge Dixon was understood to be of the opinion that these mortgages were binding The Opposition ran Cothren, a repudiator, expecting to make his election a sure thing

At the State election last Fall, the vote stood for Congressmen as follows—

	Republican	Democratic
Cast in the State,	59,041	65,117
By soldiers out of State,	7,760	2,768
Total,	66,801	67,885
Democratic majority on home vote,		6,076
Republican majority on soldier's vote,		4,992
Net Democratic majority,		1,086

In the above are included the soldiers' votes rejected for informality by the home canvassers —Republican, 1,352 Democratic, 298 Throw these out, and the net Democratic majority is swelled to 2,140 Each party elected three members We now carry the State by several thousand majority, probably

DARING CAPTURE OF A BLOCKADE RUNNER. A short time since the U S gunboat Octorara captured the fast sailing sloop Rosalie, as she was endeavoring to run the blockade. An officer and four men were placed on board, armed with muskets, with orders to cruise in certain localities for forty-eight hours, at the expiration of which time they were to join the Octorara. Before the time had passed, the Rosalie made a strange sail and bore down upon her, flying the rebel flag On coming alongside, the captain of the schooner, (recognizing the sloop as a noted blockade runner, and ignorant of her capture) made some inquiries as to the proximity of Federal cruisers, the best means of avoiding them &c. After some conversation, the master of the sloop ran down the Confederate rag and hoisted the stars and stripes, at the same time demanding the surrender of the vessel, threatening to blow her out of water if she refused. This disconcerted the captain of the schooner somewhat, and he quickly yielded to the superior force of five men armed with muskets. The prize proved to be a fine schooner with a valuable cargo. She had run the blockade successfully sixteen times previously

Michigan has undoubtedly gone Republican in her late Judicial Election, by a large increase of her majority over last Fall It is probably about 10,000.

The taking of a fortified city says the Albany Journal, is the most difficult of all the achievements of war The greatest conquerors in history have been compelled to spend months and years in reducing a town of a few thousand inhabitants Gibraltar is a proverb of impregnability It took the allies sixteen months to reduce Sebastopol. The fleets and armies of Victor Emanuel battered the walls of Gaeta for five months before they found admission An English fleet set out to capture Cronstadt, and found the obstacle so insuperable that it returned without firing a gun But Sebastopol, and Gaeta, and Cronstadt never had such artillery as Charleston, and yet we are indignant because Admiral Du Pont did not capture it in an afternoon Let us try and be reasonable

The State of Georgia is a troublesome member of the Southern Confederacy, and gives Davis some difficulty First, Stephens opposed secession, then Governor Brown stood out for State Rights, and opposed drafts and compulsory taxes, then the State Judges pronounced the conscription law unconstitutional, and now Davis demands that the States shall, by legislative action, endorse the bonds of the Confederacy, but the Georgia Senate refused to do it, and submitted the matter to the people, a movement boding no good to Davis.

From a Wisconsin Paper

"THE NATIONAL SANITARY EFFORTS Mr. Editor: In listening to the lecture of Captain Bellows last evening, my feelings reminded me very much of the stories of the old war-horse, which would rush back to battle on the sound of the drum or the roar of artillery I was reminded of so much of what I had seen, that I felt much like telling my own experience with the National Sanitary Commission

When I went to the field I found a large proportion of the surgeons, for some cause which I have not learned, opposed to that Commission It of course took me but a little while to become strongly prejudiced and bitterly opposed Every agent sent to inspect us was made the subject of not very flattering remarks Every pamphlet which they issued was by me ridiculed Last winter a number of surgeons met in my tent—the Commission soon became our subject—something must be written against it, and I must write it. I was full of the subject, and threw into my article all the force I could command Just as I was finishing it the sound of artillery came booming over the land, heavier and heavier grew the roar—[illegible]—a battle is fought at Dranesville The surgeons dispersed to collect appliances for the wounded, The sufferers in the battle began to arrive We had scarcely anything they needed The noise of the battle had been heard in Washington, and by the time the wounded were undressed in came those Sanitary agents with the very articles of comfort which the government had failed to supply I laid the article I had written in my trunk, thinking I would finish it "at a more convenient season"

Time passed on, and we found ourselves on the Peninsula. In the haste of moving, most of the appliances of comfort had been left behind For weeks we were almost wholly destitute of medicines, of any articles of diet for the sick The battle of Lee's Mills commenced on the 19th (I think) of April, and continued through the next day What should I do? I was almost without medicine, notwithstanding that from day to day I had been striving for weeks to procure it But just then was discovered a number of "those sanitary chaps, who are prying into everybody's business" Somehow or other they had the very things we needed That night, after having finished my labors with the wounded, I went to my trunk, took out that article "on the sanitary," read a few lines; it did not read as well as I thought it would, so raised a garment and put it under, where it would not stare me in the face every time I looked in

The battle of Williamsburg followed, and before the smoke of the battle had blown away right along side of our army lay one of those ever present Sanitary steamers freighted not only with necessaries but with luxuries for the sick and wounded They had only to be asked for and they were distributed, without limit Another shirt was thrown over my article "Mr Editor"

I was in charge of Liberty Hill Hospital at the time of the battle of Hanover Court House Here both the sick and the wounded were crowded on to me Five hundred were piled in at one time I had not a bed, not a loose blanket, not a cooking utensil and nothing to cook In vain did I appeal to the medical director, in vain did he appeal to higher authority The necessaries of life even were not to be had I begged, I plead—no use In a few days after the battle, on the breaking up of other hospitals, the wounded who could not be sent to a distant hospital were sent to me, and some of them in the most loathsome condition, their wounds gangrenous and alive with worms Again I appealed for means of comfort, and now with such importunity that I was threatened with dismissal from the service I procured a pass to White House, 24 miles away There I found the Sanitary boats I told the Commission the story of the soldiers' suffering Hundreds of clean sheets, blankets, bed sacks and pillows were packed in less time than it needs to read this article Boxes of condensed milk, farina, army soup, tea, coffee, sugar, oranges and lemons were sent on with astonishing celerity. When I departed, there was not a single State represented in that hospital but found an article which bore the marks of his home New York, Pennsylvania Connecticut, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, all were there, both with their soldiers and contributions

As I led one poor fellow, from Pennsylvania, to his bed, and he read upon a cover of the clean white sheet the name of both his family and home, the convulsive sobs with which he shook that building, could they have been heard in the streets of Milwaukie, would have shook copperheads which now spit venom at the soldiers That whole hospital wept, and as I took my paper and put it in the very bottom of my trunk, I noticed that somehow a few watery spots had fallen amongst the lines

On the retreat, in the seven day's fight, every mile of the march gave evidence of a presence, which moved in its charities, always ahead of the Government

The army arrived at Harrison's Landing The sick had been sent ahead of us In this connection I state but a single case in illustration A young man from Milwaukie, in whom I felt a great interest, was found, after a long hunt, in an ambulance He was spitting black bile, and had all the symptoms of an approaching attack of yellow fever

Government transports were at the wharf, taking on the wounded. I had the ambulance driven to the river, and asked a place for this young man. It was denied, the transports were only to take the wounded. "But he is in more danger than hundreds of wounded" "Our orders are peremptory. We take only the wounded." Thirty hours here would be certain death. What could I do! I succeeded in getting to a transport which the Sanitary Commission had. I appealed to them. "We have only two hundred and forty on board—we will take him." He was sent to his home, and does the mother of that young man ever enter the Sanitary rooms without shedding tears of joy and thankfulness to that Commission? Without feeling that the means for furnishing the conveyance were, perhaps, drawn from the funds of other States? I pass over other scenes of suffering relieved which I witnessed at Centreville, at South Mountain, Crampton's Gap, Antietam and Fredericksburg. At Antietam I took the paper from the bottom of my trunk, and lest I might see it again I burned it, and now declare on my word of honor that I never wrote it, and that I will never do so again

ARRIVAL OF THE HARVEST MOON Yesterday afternoon, upon invitation of Capt. Roix, about two hundred citizens, accompanied by the Bangor Cornet Band, took a very pleasant excursion in the steam tug Terror, to Bucksport, to meet and welcome to our city the new steamer "Harvest Moon" The Terror arrived at Bucksport in an hour and a half, just as the Harvest Moon reached the wharf, and the company was at once transferred to the latter boat, by invitation of Capt Roix She then started for Bangor, and arrived at half past six, having been delayed an hour or more by the running ice All along on her trip she was welcomed by the people with demonstrations of pleasure—and was received on her arrival at her wharf in this city, by a crowd of several thousands Being a new boat and the first arrival of a steamer this season, there was much curiosity to see her We heard but one expression from the company on board, and that was of satisfaction with the arrangements and accommodations She is very strongly built and fast vessel—having made, we understand, even better time than that of the favorite Daniel Webster between Portland and Rockland, and probably being faster than any boat heretofore on the river. She is well furnished and has ample accommodations for passengers and freight—is a reasonably easy craft in a sea way—and is excellently officered and manned As we have before stated, she is commanded by Capt Roix, long and favorably known on the eastern waters, formerly first pilot of the Webster, and thoroughly acquainted with the route Her clerk is Mr William Mower, formerly of Mower & Co's Express, and efficient and accommodating officer—and her chief pilot is Capt Tyler of Rockland, who is every way qualified for the position We do not know the names of the other officers The boat has thirty-six state rooms on her saloon deck, and capacious, convenient and well furnished cabins below Every thing is substantial, comfortable and sufficiently elegant, without any extravagant expenditure She will leave this city for the present at 4 o'clock A M

A RUNAWAY Yesterday forenoon, as Mr Thomas Mason was crossing Franklin Bridge in a wagon, his horse put a foot through a decayed plank, and stumbling, broke one of the thills of the wagon and threw Mr Mason out, bruising him somewhat, but not seriously The horse was frightened, and ran, with the wagon across the bridge to Hammond Street, ran into one wagon on the easterly corner, and turning ran into two others on the westerly corner of Franklin Street, and continued up over the Hammond Street Hill, after starting three other horses in a stampede There was no damage, however from the whole affair, except the breaking of Mr Mason's wagon

From the Kennebec Journal.

A Gold Placer in Maine.

The Report of the Scientific Survey of Maine, published in 1862, by order of the Legislature, contains the following exhibit, viz:

"There is an extensive tract in the northwest part of the State, in which native gold has been found It has been seen only in the alluvium. We refer to the country washed by the Sandy River. It was first found by a returned California miner It has been found on the Sandy River, at various localities, between its source and New Sharon. One man dug out thirty dollars's worth. The facts show that there is gold in situ, [some collected body or continuous locality,] in the rocks of Somerset and Franklin counties"

Such is the testimony of the Scientific Commissioners. Some further facts, derived from other sources, will here be added.

There is a large high rock-mountain, called Mt Saddleback, in Franklin county, near the Somerset line. It is rough and precipitous, and extends into several townships Under its eastern base two rivers take their rise, viz: the Sandy River, running southerly, and the Dead River, running some fifteen miles northwardly, and thence eastwardly into the Kennebec. Doubtless there are streams from its western slope—These would naturally fall into the Androscoggin.

"Wash-gold," as spoken of in the foregoing article upon the Mineral Wealth of Colorado, is such small pieces as have been washed by the rains and melted ice and snows down the sides of the mountains, in which the main deposit is lodged, and thence carried along in the bed of the streams by the currents

Colorado gold was found in the rips and bars of the river, in seasons of low water, two hundred and fifty miles below the mountain deposit. It may be conceived that particles and lumps near the shore adhered to the ice, and were carried with it till it melted, and left the metal all along the river.

It is certain that 'wash-gold' has been found on the Sand River in many places as far as into New Sharon, a distance of perhaps fifty miles from the mountain. On the Dead River stream, it has been discovered many miles down. At Madrid, close under the base of the mountain, a company was employed in collecting gold, for two or three summers, as was reported. But, just as it happened in California and in Colorado, so here the pick, the shovel and the pan were found unsuitable and inadequate for the business. The chief of the gold obtained in California and Colorado, has been found diffused through beds or veins of quartz, a very hard, semi-crystallized rock, of a white color. The crushing of that rock requires great power.—Mills for that purpose are made in New England, and transported, at great expense, to the far West, seven or eight hundred miles, by wagon teams, through the wilderness, beyond any car or boat line At this time, it is probable that, in and beyond the Rocky Mountains, there are a thousand of these mills in operation, propelled by steam power.

It is believed to be highly probable that gold-bearing quartz exists in Mount Saddleback. A gentleman writes that seventeen miles distant he saw the mountain; that on its south end and near the top there are two large white spots, glittering in the sunlight, supposed to contain half an acre each. He has no doubt that these are quartz rocks. And so it is supposed in that region. But no experiment has been made, because of the steepness of that part of the mountain Another gentleman, of entire reliability, and living but a few miles from the mountain, states that he has found gold in every stream and rill that comes from it.

In relation to this mountain, then, there is every indication that led to the gold discoveries at Pike's Peak It is not a little remarkable that no effort has been made to test the quartz in this Maine deposit? From a single half bushel of the rock, under a common sledge hammer, its character might be ascertained—is it not worth while for some of our enterprising people to make the experiment? If found to be of the character which many believe, it would be a source of immense wealth.

HORRIBLE. Rev J. B Rogers, Chaplain of the 14th Wisconsin regiment, who has been in charge of the freed blacks at Cairo for some months, confirms a statement which appeared in the papers last fall, of the fiendish barbarity of the rebels in Northern Alabama, which was so monstrous as to be received with incredulity. He says that the rebels actually butchered about a thousand blacks to prevent them falling into the hands of the Union army Two hundred were confined in a large building, the building fired, and every one of them burned to death. Such things seem beyond belief, but the evidence is said to be indisputable.

For Stomach, or Tape Worms, it is a sure remedy

For children, when Teething, it completely soothes the pain, by diluting with milk and rubbing the Gums. When very severe give it in 6 to 10 drop doses in milk, and is a perfect relief.

HUNNEWELL'S

I, W H PRITCHARD, do certify that my wife Esther S, has had Weak Eyes from childhood, caused by measles One year since a lump appeared on the lash of her eye It increased to the size of a large pea. Becoming somewhat alarmed about the progress it was making I took my wife Mrs M G BROWN, at the Exchange She told me she could remove it, and further strengthen her eyes Mrs B applied her medicine at seven o'clock in the evening, and at nine o'clock the lump was gone We could see no more of it My wife can now see people walking on the other side of the street which she could never do before She has always had headache when riding in a carriage Yesterday when riding in a carriage, she had no return of headache My own eyes were treated two or three times by Mrs Brown I find them much strengthened.
